IMPARTIAL, NOT NEUTRAL.

SHANGHAI, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3 1863

WE refrained from commenting on the trial of Fred. W. Pinder for dealing in arms with the rebels, until we learned what steps it was proposed to take in reference to the other English and American subjects who were arrested on board the same boat, and of course fell under suspicion of the same misdemeanour. There could, of course, have been no doubt as to their fate, unless weight were attached to the evidence of Burgevine's servant, William Ranglin, who said that three of the men in custody at the English Consulate were in the boat with him when Pinder boarded it. But the men themselves denied this fact, and as Ranglin's sole evidence was not sufficient to convict them, against the assertion that no prisoners were taken, made by the men whom the American Court had decided to have been associated with Pinder in the capture, they were released. The decision that Pinder was not trading in arms with the rebels, of course involved the acceptance of his assertion that he, and the men taken with him, had captured the boat from a former crew, who had jumped ashore and run away, and any charge against them fell to the ground in consequence. The suspicions expressed by Captains Moriarty and Solway that a connection existed between the small boat and the lorcha Rose, of course fall also to the ground; Pinder's object in chartering the vessel is acknowledged to be legitimate trading, and Captain Oliver's explanation that the provisions found on board were intended only for the use of himself and mate,—unless indeed an opportunity offered to dispose of any trifling article to a friend,—is admitted to be credible and true. Mr. Cooper, in the course of a very able speech for the defence, in which the most trifling inconsistencies in the evidence for the prosecution were brought out and shewn to be of an importance which had not previously been suspected, said that the accusation of being concerned in arms-dealing had been brought against Pinder by the officers of the Amay, to screen themselves from any claim which Pinder might make against them for illegal arrest; and added that "there was nothing against Pinder but suspicions and impressions." We quite agree with Mr. Cooper in this last assertion; the Consular Court has decided that there was not sufficient evidence of complicity. But it appears to us that the fact of the existence of those suspicions and impressions fully justified the course taken by Captain Solway. He could not be expected to hold an impromptu Court of Enquiry, and ascertain that there was sufficient evidence to place the conviction of Pinder and his companions beyond reach of doubt. He found a boat containing arms, manned by a number of Europeans, beating down stream against a head wind. Pinder stated that he had captured her from a former crew, with the aid of the men on board, but produced no prisoners to prove his assertion; in the momentary excitement, he even overlooked Ranglin who, at the time, according to the latter's subsequent admission, was secured below. We think therefore that Capt. Solway had ample grounds on which to justify him in detaining the boat, its freight and occupants, until a clearer explanation had been arrived at. The legality of the arrest, under another aspect in which Mr. Cooper placed it, may possibly be open to question. Unless the officers of Sherard Osborne's fleet hold legal commissions, either directly from the Emperor of China, or derivatively through their Commander, they are of course, according to European custom, not authorized to effect an arrest. The uniform is no authority, as Captain Solway was under the impression it was, unless backed by a commission. But the Chinese would not be particular on this point; they would thankfully accept a victim, whether offered by an individual duly consecrated to the office or not. We may safely dismiss the case from our consideration, therefore, with the conclusion that, although, as the U. S. Consular Court has decided, there was not sufficient evidence to convict Pinder, sufficient reasonable suspicion existed to justify Captain Solway in arresting him.

The fact, however, remains that the boat was originally on its way to Soochow, and that it contained arms and foreigners destined for Burgevine's service; so it is evident that, notwithstanding the blocking of the routes by the Pilmaou and Foushan creeks, boats can still count with tolerable certainty on finding their way to Soochow. This capture, so successfully effected by Mr. Pinder, is the first of which we have heard for a considerable time. Burgevine himself and all the foreigners whom he has enlisted in his service, have passed up almost unmolested; and if report is to be credited, the former has several times since, passed and repassed the same ground. It is to be regretted that the Imperialists cannot be induced to keep better ward, and prevent this supply of munitions and recruits to their enemies; but when not guided by foreign leaders, they seem equally useless as sentries or as soldiers. It is to be regretted, too, that the Amoy could not move at night with the same facility as Pinder's sampans. Had she, instead of they, overtaken the boat, it is possible that she might have prevented those on board from so successfully beaching, and escaping from her.

Summary of the Week.

DURING the past week the utmost tranquility has reigned in and around Shanghai. The intelligence brought by the English Mail was unimportant, and had been for the most part anticipated by the later telegrams, forwarded by the preceding steamer. A force consisting of 100 men of the Royal Artillery, 200 of the 67th, 100 of the 22nd N. I. and a competent number of gun lascars started on Wednesday evening for Taitsang. It is thought that these troops are primarily intended to garrison Quinsan during Major Gordon's attack on Soochow; but it is, we believe, within the bounds of possibility that they may take a more active part in the operations about to be carried on.

Messrs. Dent & Co.'s fine steamer the Fusiyama, lately put together by Messrs. Collyer and Lambert, made her trial trip on Thursday last. A large number of the foreign residents, including about ten ladies, a few of the civil and military officers at present in Shanghai, and several heads of houses were invited. The run was from Messrs. Dent & Co.'s wharf to the beacon, a distance which was accomplished in two hours and a half. The freedom of this steamer from the usual vibration must have struck all on board. The accomodations for both European and Chinese passengers could hardly be surpassed, and this, together with its great carrying capacity, will we doubt not render the Fusi-yama a most popular boat on the Yang-tsze.

The case of the United States of America v. Carrol and Williams for Piracy and Murder on the Yang-tsze, came on for final hearing on Monday last. A full report of the depositions taken will be found in another column.

From QUINSAN our reports are encouraging. On the 28th ultimo a force of 1,200 disciplined Chinese under Major Gordon and Captain Bonnefoi started from Wai-kwei-dong, and arrived without molestation at Pa-ta-chow on the Grand Canal, and situated about six li from Soochow. The Cygnet and Firefly kept up a heavy fire, and at the same time, Major Gordon made a movement with the Infantry to cut off the retreat of the garrison. The enemy having been put to flight, the Imperialist force returned to Pa-ta-chow, but the Hyson, which together with some gunboats sent by Ching, had gone up to within 1,000 yards of Soochow, was attacked by a large force which issued from the city. A steady fire of shell and grape was, however, kept up by Captain Davidson, and the enemy was forced to retire with considerable loss. A second engagement took place with the like result, in the afternoon, between a force of 5,000 rebels led by Europeans, and the French corps, with the 2nd regiment of Gordon's men. The Gunboats poured in shot and shell, and the Rebels were forced to retire precipitately. The casualties on the Imperialist side were three Europeans and five natives wounded.

Our NINGPO correspondent has not of late favored us with any communications of interest. The capture of Fu-yang by the Franco-Chinese, was reported to the French Consulate on the evening of the 29th ultimo. The following is an extract from the despatch sent to M. Mauboussin :—

The Franco-Chinese corps, mustering 850 men, carried Foyang by assault on the 20th September, after a combat of five hours, with a loss of twelve killed, and thirty wounded.

Since then a report has been circulated by the Chinese that the Treasurer of Che-kiang has succeeded in driving the Rebels out of Hang-chow. In the absence of information from an authentic source, we are hardly disposed to credit this statement.

The news from HANKOW is unimportant. We have received a communication from Mr. Evans, Portuguese *Consul at Hankow, denying the state*ment which appeared in the Daily Shipping List of the 15th instant, to the effect that the Chinese authorities had refused to acknowledge him as Portuguese Consul. Mr. Evans informs us that on his arrival in Hankow, he was introduced by the English Consul to the Viceroy, and officially received, and that since then he has on all occasions been acknowledged by the native authorities. We suppose that some rumour got afloat and that our correspondent was led to attach undue weight to it.

In KIU-KIANG, a correspondence, published in our Daily issue of the 1st inst., has taken place between H. B. M.'s Consul and the Mercantile Community. The Notification issued by Mr. Hughes which gave rise to the controversy, was a simple statement of a fact which it was the interest of the community to be acquainted with. Tsang-kwo-fan, it seems, has announced his determination to continue the imposition of the local tax on Tea. Mr. Hughes pointed out the only possible means of obtaining redress—viz, depositing at the first barrier a memorandum, shewing the amount of produce, &c., &c. The unreasoning minds of the young men who are the Kiukiang representatives of the foreign mercantile houses, took umbrage at something in this Notification, but it is extremely difficult to say at what. They further were kind enough to make an addition to the "Instructions to Consuls," and enlightened Her Majesty's representative as to their views of his duty. We perceive that Mr. Hughes did not seem to appreciate these gratuitous additions made to the Queen's instructions, and we trust that if at any future time he be favored with the views of the mercantile community, on any official question, he will again shew that he puts a just value on the opinions of men so ill-qualified to judge of Consular duties.

In NAGASAKI much apprehension prevails, consequent on continual rumours of the approach of Loonins and retainers of disaffected princes. All classes of the community seem to share in the alarm caused by these reports. A body of sailors patrol the settlement every night, and both the Commissioned and Warrant Officers of the men of war in port (the Leopard and the Rattler) have received orders not to sleep ashore. Meanwhile some of the foreigners living in the settlement contribute their quota to the general excitement. A man named Cavanagh, who has been for some time in business in Nagasaki, as a Ship chandler, has been brought in guilty of the manslaughter of his book-keeper. The latter, whose name was Phillips, was in bed when Cavanagh attacked him in a most brutal manner and injured him so severely as to cause death within an hour. Drunkenness was Cavanagh's only excuse. We do not therefore understand the grounds on which a verdict of Manslaughter was brought in. The sentence was five years imprisonment with hard labour, and to be deported from Japan.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS IN CHINA.

To the Editor of the North China Herald.

Sir,—Your article on "Elementary Medical Schools" in China, which appeared in the Herald of the 19th ultc., seems to me to contain several suggestions which I should like to refer to, especially as you say you wish "to obtain a verdict as to the value of these schools," and nothing is more desirable than to have the opinions of residents here on this important and interesting subject,—men of good judgment, who have been several years among the Chinese, who know something of their natural capacities and aptitude for acquiring knowledge, and who would be willing to aid in promoting the best interests of this badly governed down-trodden, but most interesting and mis-understood people.

I fully agree with you in saying that "what China wants is to be saved from herself, from her own effete institutions, debased morality and utter ignorance." The people of China must first be taught their own ignorance, taught to know how little they really do know, for this is the first real step in the progress of knowledge, in the education of the individual as well as of the nation; it is moreover the most difficult step to reach, and which China has never yet approached by a long way. One of the best methods of teaching the human mind is by contrast; this method of teaching has been adopted by the greatest sages of our race in all ages. The Chinese, especially, appreciate and comprehend this method more than any other. No people are more ready to compare this thing with that, contrast them together and form a judgment as to which is number one or number two, and hence I have no doubt that, were the two systems of medical art—that of Europe and that of China—fully explained and held up in their practical utility before the judgment of the intelligent Chinaman, he would not hesitate to give a verdict in favour of the former, and after due investigation he would grin broadly at the gullability of his predecessors in their belief of the doctrines of the pulse and other vagaries connected with the practice of medicine.

There is no doubt whatever, but that well organized medical schools, connected with hospitals, and conducted by able and judicious men, would succeed admirably in China. The difficult question is, what is the best method of conducting these schools? Strictly speaking, Chinese scholars only are properly qualified to give an opinion in this matter, in other words those only who are proficient in the Chinese language, are competent to judge whether it would be best for edification to teach medical and other sciences in Chinese or in English. In a paper on "Chinese Medicine" in the Shanghai Recorder, I mentioned that Dr. Hobson, when composing a work on pneumatics "had to invent names for oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, carbonic acid gas, &c., &c. New names had also to be invented before the electric machine, galvanic battery, air pump, thermometer, barometer, &c., could be explained or described. In optics, solar light, the radiation of heat, indeed in all the natural sciences, they have not got beyond the A. B. C. of nothing is known of chemistry, and hence the difficulty to explain the composition of different substances is all but insuperable. When translating works on physiology, anatomy, surgery, chemistry, midwifery and natural philosophy, an immense number of new names had to be invented, names moreover which only convey the idea of what is meant to be taught in a most vague and imperfect manner, even to the best Chinese scholars; and which convey no meaning at all to ordinary readers. I speak advisedly, for I have been at some pains to investigate this matter as fully as possible. I have questioned the best Chinese scholars in this quarter regarding the matter, among others the Rev. Mr. Muirhead; and the deliberate opinion is that, in order to teach the Chinese any western science fully and intelligently, it must be done, not in Chinese, but in some European language. This being so, the first thing to be done is to instruct those Chinese who are to be taught western science in some European language, and this is not an untried experiment; it has been tried and has fully succeeded. I spent some years at Edinburgh University with Wong Fun, a native of the Quang-Tung province. He was the first, if not the only Chinaman who graduated in any European University. He took his degree of doctor of medicine in August 1855, and in the University competitive examinations by prizes, he carried off two if not more first class prizes, from hundreds of students whose advantages far exceeded his own, and having put him in practice and seen him perform surprising operations, I can confidently say that there is not a medical man in China now, who has a better knowledge of his profession in all its branches than Dr. Wong Fun.

Now what was done with this man, may and can be done for others. Chinamen are essentially like each other, and this man belonged to the middle, if not to the lower class of Chinese. In order, then, to teach a Chinaman medical science in his own language, a perfectly new vocabulary must be first provided for him, then he has to be taught this new vocabulary, a task which would be equal at least to that of teaching him English. Those who differ from me here, I would ask how much an English peasant would learn of medical science if set down in a professional lecture room in one of our metropolitan hospitals, without having first a tolerable knowledge of Latin, and a good English education. Every second or third word pronounced by the lecturer, would be to him utterly unintelligible; the "men perfectly capable of treating disease in all its forms" on leaving Calcutta Medical College, are men who have been taught English and have been taught their profession in English, it having been found impossible in India, as it will be in all other Eastern nations, to find words and phrases that will convey intelligently and fully the ideas which abound in abstruse Western philosophy, and natural and medical science. I have met with one now in the Chinese Hospital, who I believe if taught the English language would make both excellent surgeons and physicians, but who in the present circumstances I have no time to teach. One man especially, has been in the hospital more than ten years, and has a great amount of practical knowledge, but is utterly destitute of the scientific part, without which, no man can be a safe or successful practitioner. Chinese Hospitals have done and are still doing great good amongst the people, but they will always be imperfect until every such hospital is under medical control. Theory and practice must always go hand in hand in learning a profession, but first of all good schools are wanted, wherein intelligent youths may be taught English and the rudiments of natural science in order to prepare them for professional instruction. Several years ago, at Ningpo, Dr. Macgowan (an American missionary) with a fair knowledge of the Chinese language in connection with an hospital in that city, lectured regularly in medical science for several years, to a number of youths connected with his hospital, but never any good came of it; those youths seemingly interested did not understand or comprehend half he said, and the whole thing collapsed; whereas, if he had first taught them his own language and then taught them his own profession, more than one would have been ready to take his place and carry on his work when he left China. Other similar examples might be cited, but I have already taken up too much of your time and space, but I earnestly hope that medical schools for the Chinese, will not be lost sight of by those who have the welfare of this people at heart.

I am,
Yours,
J. HENDERSON.

A full report of the trial in the above case has been given in our daily issue. But as the greater portion of the evidence was only a re-iteration of that contained in the following depositions by witnesses of the crime, taken before the French, English and American Consuls at Hankow, and at the U. S. Consulate in Shanghai, it is unnecessary to reproduce it in full.

The following are depositions taken in Hankow before the undermentioned gentlemen:—

P. Dabry, Consul for France, J. A. Webster, H.B.M. Acting Consul, and C. D. Williams, Consul for the United States and Russia. Taken at the French Consulate, Hankow, 22nd August 1863.

Appeared, A. Benjamin Bodestyne—Duly sworn, states I was born in Malacca. I am a British subject. About two months since, I was a passenger on board a lugger called the Jupiter lying about two miles below Nanking. The shroff of the Jupiter, a Chinaman, went on board the lorcha Maria, lying close to us. The Maria was flying the American flag at the time. After the shroff had reached the Maria three white men took his boat which was alongside, and came from the Maria to the Jupiter. After they got on board they asked the Captain of the Jupiter if he had got a mate. The Captain said "No, I have a passenger." "Call the passenger," said one of them, and I came on deck. One of the men asked if we had any papers. The Captain of the Jupiter replied Yes, and went below. Three men followed the captain. They then said what business have you to fly the American flag? The Captain said he had got papers and orders for it. They took all the papers and kept them, afterwards saying heave up the anchor, we will take the Jupiter alongside the lorcha Maria. They also said they wanted the money on board. One of them, who gave by the name of Thomas Sayers, said I am one of the Customs Officers. I want the money, and if you don't give it to me I will shoot every one. I will take the boat down to Chin-kiang. The captain replied I don't know where the money is. One of the men from the Maria said you do, you better give it up, it belongs to the Chinaman, not to you, what do you want? If you don't give it up then it is your life. They then made myself and the captain get up the Treasure. Sayers had a rifle and revolver. The others had revolvers. They kept saying, get up the money, we will give you five minutes or shoot you. While the Captain and myself were trying to get it up, Sayers aimed his rifle at a Chinaman forward. I was directly behind Sayers when he fired. I saw him hit the Chinaman in the jaw. The latter fell against the rail. He died next day. In a few minutes our boat, which had gone back to the lorcha for our shroff, returned, and the shroff came on deck. Immediately the three men asked him for the money on board. He said yes, I'll give up the money, but don't shoot any one. The shroff then went below with one of the crew, and dug in the bunker, and took out apparently more than those Taels. They put the silver into a towel. While the shroff was giving the money, four more white men came on board. Amongst them were Carrol of the Maru and a Frenchman named Maria. The latter is the man I have seen here to-day. The others I do not know by name, nor have I seen them since. Carrol took the papers from the three men, and tore up the U S Consular pass issued at Shanghai, throwing it on the deck. He gave back the other papers. He said if it had not been for him, the Manilarins would have attacked the Jupiter, and he therefore wanted the money. Sayers, who seemed partially intoxicated, said I am a Custom House Officer you know me (addressing me) I said yes, I once went aboard your lorcha to buy tobacco. He replied you didn't know all the time that the Maria was a Custom House lorcha. The Jupiter which you also in now had a red stem before, and now it is black, and you think I can't make it out. Taylor asked if he might go up the river. One of the white men said to Sayers, Please allow him to proceed as a favor. Sayers replied Yes he can. The white men then went into the sampan, but before going asked if we had any small arms. We showed them some swords and two guns. They said we might keep these. They then went alongside the Maria, and some of them went aboard. We remained where we were until next day, and then proceed to Kiukiang. Anchored near to one papilco, one cut-down junk flying the American flag, one small lorcha at first flying the English flag, which was afterwards hauled down. While the crew were digging in the ballast, I saw one of the white men shoot one of the Chinese who were digging. The shot was fired from the sampan. The man was hit on the head and dropped dead. Another man was shot below while I was aft to get some water to drink. I saw him brought from the hold. Next day the dead were taken ashore and buried by the Jupiter's crew. The Shroff of the boat visited to me that he was formerly employed by M. Dabry, Consul of this port. I saw only the white men in the four boats near us, and while they were aboard of us I saw no others remaining on the other boats. The Jupiter had aboard about 600 pecuils of rice as freight from Ta-tung, which she delivered half way up the creek at Nanking. She made two voyages from Ta-tung to Nanking with rice. After the piracy, I remained on board the Jupiter till we got to Kiukiang, where I took passage on board the lugger Lark for this port. The Lark flies the English flag. I have received a note from Taylor since I left. I hand in the note.

This note was dated August 10th, and simply expressed a hope that Bodestyne had "not said anything about what happened on the passage from Shanghai."

(Signed) A. B. Bodestyne.

II.

Appeared, Antonio Alonzo.—Being duly sworn, deposed, Was born in Macao. I am 17 years old. I am a sailor on board the Maria at $15 per month. I joined her at Shanghai October 1st, 1862. I came to Shanghai in lorcha No. 4, belonging to Antonio Fonseca. I left her when she was sold in August 1862, and then joined the Maria. I was not shipped before the U S Consul at Shanghai. We went to Ching from Chin-kiang, and took a cargo of salt to Ma-tow above Tung-lo-yu. We sold the salt and took back paper to Ching. We have made two voyages of this kind. On our last voyage to Matow we left the salt unsold, went to Kiukiang, and took a cargo of paper to Shanghai. Above Ching on our next voyage we took a cargo of candles, paper and tobacco When we saw a custom House boat we threw the cargo overboard. We made three trips with rice to Nanking. I was not present when the money came aboard from the Jupiter, but I heard something about it. I saw a sampan come alongside. A lot of white men jumped aboard. There were Carrol, the mate and five others. They came about 3 or 4 P. M. They went into the cabin to Captain. They had been gone from the Maria to the papilco about an hour. Our mate's name is Charlie. He took a rifle and a sword, and brought them back. When he came back the rifle was capped ready. I don't know whether it was loaded. Nothing was said when the men left the boat for the papilco, except—Let's go along. We arrived in Hankow at 9 A.M. Five men came down aboard immediately and stopped about half an hour. One of them was the captain of the Lark. I don't know the others. The captain went to the Consulate in his sampan. One man and the mate went to the Han-yang side. I received no share of any money brought on board the Maria The Frenchman was aboard when the money was brought. He went below with the others. I didn't see him take any money with him when he left the Maria.

III.

Appeared Mack Antoine. Being duly sworn, stated, I was born in Brest I am a sailor, 29 years old. I came to Hankow in the French gun boat L'Etoile. I saw Bodestyne about five months since at Ta-tung, and about half a month later, below Nanking I was aboard a cut down junk belonging to Mr Lindlay. The Jupiter was there at the same time. One morning I went aboard the Maria, and bookfaced with the Captain Lindley went with me. I had eight or nine drinks together. After breakfast, they said, the Jupiter has made three trips to Nanking, and has not been caught yet, she must give us 50 taels each. Three men, Sayers, Allen and another whom I don't know had been drinking deeply. They were in a sampan to the Jupiter Lindley went to his own boat. He heard a shot on board the Jupiter, and sang out to me, tell the Captain of the Maria I am coming aboard to go with him to stop the shooting. A Mr. Hawkins, Carrol, Lindley and myself went aboard the Jupiter. The shroff of the Jupiter was formerly with Mr. Bodestyne. He said If you stop the shooting I will give them all the money. I told Allen and the rest what the shroff said. No notice was taken of this. When I got on deck I saw one man forward who had been shot, lying down not quite dead. I didn't see any one shot, but Lindley told me that two or three had been shot below. He said he saw them I went with all the white men in the sampan with the money to the Maria. The money was taken on deck. I don't remember who put it on Carrol's table It was there when I left. There were in the cabin, Allen, a Bodestyne had lost some, of his front teeth, whom I don't know, Sayers, a Manilaman and Hawkins. I left with Lindley in his boat. Neither of us received any of the money Sayers had a rifle, Allen and the other had revolvers All the men had arms. I also had. Allen is a dark man, about 30 years, with red whiskers Lindley had a partner named Laurence I think he is now in Shanghai During the attack on the Jupiter, there were no national flags flying on the junks near. I didn't see Alonzo with the others below, where the money was There were two foreigners belonging to the Jupiter. I first saw Sayers about a year since in Hankow Hotel at this port. I saw him again about 24 months ago. I saw Carrol first at Ta-tung and next during the affair. I am aboard the Maria only once.

IV.

Appeared Thomas Sayers alias Charlie or Charles, Mate of the Maria. Being duly sworn, states: My name is David Williams. I was born in Brooklyn, N Y. I am 22 years old I arrived in Shanghai by the Egmont from Auckland, New Zealand, as an ordinary seaman. I sailed from London to New York. I went in the North Wind from New York to London in August 1857. I remained in New Zealand until 1861 as a shepherd. I arrived in Hongkong in the Sea Belle in July 1861. I left in the Egmont in August 1862 and arrived in Shanghai in September. I came as a passenger to Hankow in a junk flying the English flag I joined the Maria at Ta-tung about May end. We took rice, oil, and charcoal for Nanking. We made two voyages. We were towed past Nanking and then came up here.

The Maria came down Nanking creek about June 30th. There were six white men, myself Carrol, Allen, Young, Mc'arty and another European, in Young's boat. I don't know the name of the latter We came outside the creek and met Allen's junk and the Jupiter. Both had been brought to anchor by the Imperialists. Some of the white men on board the Maria called out to the Jupiter to get under weigh. She did so. So did Allen's junk. They went below the mud fort and anchored. The Maria stopped there from 10 A.M. till noon. Allen invited Marie, who had come aboard the Maria to go with them to the Jupiter Marie refused to go. I went at the request of Young and Allen, and I asked two Europeans on board for money. The Chinamen went down to dig in the ballast, and while they were digging there were two or three shots fired by either Young or Allen. Carrol then came on board with Marie, Lindley, Hawkins and another whose name I forget. They took the money, four hundred Taels, and one hundred Dollars tied up in a handkerchief, and shared it among four of us—myself, Carrol, Young and Allen. When it was shared I went to sleep, and while I was asleep, Allen, Hawkins, Young, Jemmy, (of the Pontoon) Marini and Lindley went away. I have seen the two latter since The Jupiter went away the same night. We ran above the mud forts, but had to go below them again in order to get the Enterprise to tow us. We were towed up next day to the further end of Marigold Island. When we arrived in Hankow three men belonging to the papilco came on board. These men were Fing (formerly a mate on the Maria), England and another. I went ashore three hours after the Maria was anchored.

I don't know Buckley the murderer. "Tom the Greek" is in a long black vessel. She was formerly the N. S. da Luz. "Old White head" is at Chinkiang, he is a tall thin man "Young White head" is short and stout. Dick Maccallum is the mate of the papilco at Ta-tung, where I saw him. When I went to the Jupiter, I took a rifle with a sword bayonet. I have never been on board the lugger Hawk. Stone is the man with one eye. I have seen him at a place below Ta-tung. I don't know the name of his vessel.

A Certificate of delivery of the Maria's papers to Carrol, on the 7th March 1864, signed by Mr. Deputy-Consul Porter was handed into Court.

Carrol's Statement.

Personally appeared and voluntarily stated, (first being duly warned that such statement would be made use of in evidence)

"My name is Henry Carrol. I was born in Ireland, naturalised in city of the ew York I have nothing at all to do with taking the money out of the papilco Jupiter. Sayers and I and several others went on board the Jupiter to prevent if possible, bloodshed We did not go from the Maria to the Jupiter. When we came on board, we found the men on board in a terrible state of excitement. One of the crew were hanging over board both forward and after, and that was what gave us the notice to go and relieve them. I went into the cabin, and saw, now stopping in Hankow, a man, I think a European, dark complexion, shewing the people who were getting the money how to get it, and where to get and begging them to take it up. He was most excited. I asked my mate to throw his eyes down, and I asked the others also to do the same, and leave the boat I was answered by some of the foreigners that they came there to take the money, and that they would not go until they got it. I answered them in the presence of the captain of the Jupiter, and the crew that I have nothing to do with this business—go your own way. I then left, and went on board the Maria. The others left with the money about the same time, and came on board the Maria. Also the money was then taken down aboard. I divided, and I accepted a portion of it. Previous to this I had no intention of handling one cent of that money. That same day I had saved the Jupiter from being taken by the Mandarins which I met in man in Hankow, before mine I knew not the craft. My mate was known by the name of Charles. I have heard that she was formerly called Thomas Sayers, and he gave his name to the French Gun-boat David Williams That was the first time I ever heard him called by that name. I believe him to be an English subject. I am one of the crew that I have ever seen the United States from what I have seen of him. He was with me nearly three months. I did not know that any one had been shot on board the Jupiter until some three days (after). I learned it from a boat passing down the river I did not see the Jupiter after this affair I saw this man of whom I have spoken as being aware that I saved the Jupiter from the Mandarins, at a house on the river frontage Tals affair was on the day of the burning of the junks at Nanking creek. The reason I took the money stated that I did so, was for the sake of having a dollar, and being bound to pay the Customs, and nothing to pay with it necessary. I was told that the Captain of the Jupiter was named Brown I do not know if she had the American flag flying. The Captain and the foreigners described were the only foreigners After the division of the money, the men went away I do not know their names. Charley was one of them. He got a share of the money.

(A.) Henry Carroll.

The Court reassembled on the 23rd September.

John Taylor.—Being duly sworn, confirmed the following affidavit made by him on the previous day's trial:

I was born in New York, and will be 21 years old in a month. I am the Captain of the papilco Jupiter, owned by Mr. Penouer of Ta-tung-chow. I left Shanghai for Hankow on April 24th 1863. About three days after I arrived at Chin-kiang. Entered and cleared all right, and left for up the river. A short distance below Nanking, I think in the month of May, in the afternoon, three Europeans came on board. They asked to see my papers. Two of them had revolvers, one of these two had a revolving rifle. I think it was the other one of the two had a rifle with a sword bayonet. The third had a revolver and sword. The one with the revolving rifle was a young looking man, beardless size, with short red hair and red whiskers. His age was, I should think about 30. The one who had the rifle and sword bayonet was a large, broad and powerful man, with dark hair. His face was covered with dark hair. He was about 40 years old. He had a fancy flannel shirt, dark pants. The one with the sword and revolver was a large man much like the last in form, with short dark hair all over his face, and about the same age as the last. They came from some boat. I don't know which, as there were several in sight. I shewed them my papers. The one who had rifle and sword pointed a revolver at me and said,—what the hell do you mean by flying that flag? I said I have papers. The one with the revolving rifle said he has the papers to fly it, what do you ask him that for? They then said, where have you got the money, we want it. I said, I don't know where the shroff has put it. They then began to search, and made me help them, telling me to do so, and pointing revolvers at me. They also compelled one A. B. Bodistine to do the same. They opened the hatches. We had some salt, and some ballast under hatches. The salt was just by the steps, and the ballast under the salt, and further aft. After looking a long time, and not finding anything like money, they said, we will shoot you if you don't give us the money quick. The shroff came on board, he having been away, I don't know where. They caught him and made him give up the money. The shroff said all right, don't shoot me, and I'll give you the money. The men were in the cabin. The shroff told them the money was in the ballast. They made the shroff go below with a sailor, the foudah, and the passenger. The one with the rifle and sword said,—Be quick. The sailor looked up and laughed, when the man shot him in the head which killed him. The man who had the sword, shot a Chinese passenger who had been compelled to go down, and killed him. The man with the revolving rifle shot a Chinese passenger who was standing by the windlass forward. He was on the floor of the cabin, and shot the passenger from there with his rifle. They took away with them about six or seven hundred dollars in sycee. Just before the three men went, they having the money tied up in two towels in the cabin, five more men came on board. All were armed but they were very quiet. I don't know where they came from. One of the five was a tall man with dark hair, long whiskers and beard. On seeing the man dead by the windlass, he said to the others, There is murder done here. Another one of the five was a young looking man without whiskers but with a small moustache, and a beard. He had light red hair. I did not hear him say anything, I cannot describe the remaining three. I think one of them was a short, stout, old looking man, I should say of about 40 years of age. I noticed nothing else peculiar about him. This man looked at the papers, and tore up a paper which I got from the Custom House to show what cargo the boat had. It was in an envelope sealed with glue. He tore it without opening the envelope, saying this don't amount to anything. He dropped the pieces on the deck and gave me back the rest of the papers. I heard no conversation between the three men and the five. After hearing that some of the sailors (Chinese) had gone on shore, the shroff and the foudah went on board one of the boats to see a friend, in the boat belonging to the Jupiter. I don't know which boat they went to. I suppose the first men came from the boat the shroff went to, because they came in my boat which the shroff had gone away in. I don't know how the shroff got back to the Jupiter. The five men came in my boat after the three men had been on board about an hour. The shroff came on board about half an hour after the three men had been on board the Jupiter. The boat the shroff went to was about ten minutes sail from the Jupiter, down the stream with the current. The three men and the five men went away in my boat with the money. I went down below when they went away, because I was afraid they would shoot me if I watched them. I sent ashore the two men killed below. Next morning, I went up to Kiukiang with the Jupiter, but said nothing of the affair. I was going to make a report, but the shroff said never mind, not to report it as he was afraid. I saw the youngest of the three men in Kiukiang. The others I did not like to say nothing about what happened on the passage, as not in regard to the theft and murder, but that I had treated him very unduly, and felt ashamed. The three men wanted me to get up my anchor, and go (they said) alongside the Custom House boat. The remains of the paper which was torn up, are in my chest on board the barque Ningpo. She lies by up the junks. My brother's name of her—My chest is in his possession. His name is Richard Taylor. I think there were some five boats lying near us at the time of the Piracy and Murder. One was a gun boat with lorchs painted black, and flying the American flag. I think the money was taken to her. The American flag was flying during the robbery and murder. I think the man who tore the paper saw the second man on board the Jupiter. The remark mentioned before about the murder having been committed, was spoken loud enough for any one to hear.

Subscribed and Sworn to before me this 24th day of September 1863. } John Taylor.

This establishment is well fitted up, to carry on business in first class style; as it has been newly furnished, and a spacious Billiard Room opened and done up in the best English manner, with Tables and all Appurtenances, made by Thurston & Co., London.

The accommodation for visitors is large and commodious, with Stables, Out-houses, Coach-houses, &c., and ample ground for additional buildings, if required.

The business of the Hotel is good; and the only reason the proprietor wishes to dispose of it, is in consequence of ill health, which necessitates his departure from Shanghai.

For further particulars apply to the Undersigned.

SAUCE.—LEA & PERRINS' WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE.

Pronounced by Connoisseurs to be the only Good Sauce and applicable to every variety of Dish.

Extract of a Letter from a Medical Gentleman at Madras to his Brother at Worcester, May, 1851:—

"Tell Lea & Perrins that their Sauce is highly esteemed in India, and is, in my opinion, the most palatable as well as the most wholesome sauce that is made."

CAUTION.

LEA & PERRINS,

Beg to caution the public against spurious imitations of their celebrated WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE.

L. & P. have discovered that several of the Foreign Markets have been supplied with SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, the labels closely resembling those of the genuine Sauce, and in one or more instances the names of L. & P. forged.

L. & P. will proceed against any one who may manufacture or vend such imitations, and have instructed their correspondents in the various parts of the world, to advise them of any infringement of their rights.

ASK FOR LEA AND PERRINS' SAUCE.

 Sold Wholesale and for Export, by the Proprietors, Worcester; Messrs. Crosse and Blackwell; Messrs. Barclay and Sons, London; &c., &c.; and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.
